Supplementary Information

I. Background

The intellectual property systems in the United States have been designed to promote innovation, creative expression and fair competition. These systems of protection, including patents, copyrights, trademarks and trade secret protection, have proven flexible enough to handle rapid advances in technology and dramatic changes in business practices. However, periodic adjustments to certain aspects of these intellectual property systems have been necessary to ensure their continued usefulness in promoting the respective fields of activity each type of protection was designed to encourage.

A question that has attracted much recent attention is the balance of rights between holders of patent rights and the general public regarding research-oriented use of patent protected technology. The question has become complicated by the increasingly close relationships that are developing between industry, Government and universities. Adding to this is the increased pace of innovation, which brings with it an increasingly compressed period between groundbreaking or landmark innovations. The question of balance, however, is central to the basic objectives of the patent system.

A primary objective of the patent system is the promotion not only of innovation but also of public disclosure of inventions. The patent system functions by providing a seventeen-year period of exclusive rights authorizing the patent holder to prohibit others from making, using or selling the patented invention, as it is defined in the patent, in exchange for a full public disclosure of the invention. This grant of exclusivity serves as the primary incentive for inventors to publicly disclose their inventions. The public benefits through this arrangement immediately via the publication of information regarding the invention and eventually through dedication to the public of the right to use the invention described in the patent.

Thus, a key aspect of the public value of patent disclosures is the immediate public access to information contained in the patent document for purposes of further research and development in the field of technology of the patented invention. Implicit in the public disclosure role of the patent system is the idea that the public will not only be able to use, in some fashion, the information contained in the patent document, but will also be given some discretion in using the patented invention itself so that it can be fully understood. Yet, other than limited provisions allowing for testing of patented pharmaceutical products for purposes of regulatory approval (e.g., §271(e)(1) of title 35, United States Code), existing law does not provide a general, statutory defense against a charge of infringement for experimental use of patented technology.

Despite this, the Federal courts have recognized a limited defense to a charge of patent infringement based on use of the patented technology for experimental purposes. This defense, referred to as the experimental use defense, has been raised infrequently, and when considered has been construed very narrowly. There are few cases elaborating the nature of the defense, primarily because patent rights are not frequently enforced against members of the public that use the patented technology for purely experimental purposes. In these cases, the courts have not recognized the defense where the accused infringer has engaged in use of the patented invention for purposes of commercially exploiting the invention, rather than for increasing their understanding of the invention. In cases where the defense has been raised successfully, the experimental use in question was to ascertain how the invention functioned or for purely philosophical or academic reason. [Note: a good summary of the experimental use exception can be found in Section IV, Part 2, Chapter 9 of House Report 100-888 (100th Congress, 2d Session).]

The increasingly close relationships between industrial, governmental and university researchers has heightened sensitivity to the commercial implications of basic, as opposed to applied, research. This, in turn, has led to questions regarding the use of patented technology in a research context. This has special implications in research-intensive industries like the pharmaceutical and biotechnological industries, which tend to be high-risk, capital intensive and intensely competitive. Many companies in these industries view clearly defined and understood patent rights as being critical to their commercial success. As a result, such companies aggressively pursue and enforce patent rights to protect their often significant financial investments. However, central to the success of these industries is access to and use of information regarding both significant and incremental advances in science and technology. Experimentation on patented products and processes in these industries often is essential to understanding the nature and significance of these advances. These factors have led to some degree of uncertainty in the research communities regarding use of information and technology disclosed in and protected by patents. This, in turn, has led to calls for a better understanding and possible clarification of the basic balance of rights with respect to research-oriented use of patented technology.

II. Topics for Discussion

The hearing will address the following topics:

- Justifications and rationale for or against an experimental use defense to patent infringement;
- Desirable characteristics of an experimental use defense to patent infringement; and
- Justifications for or against a statutory experimental use defense to patent infringement.

The topics will be explored through a series of questions to which interested members of the public are invited to respond.

[Note: The following questions have been developed with the intent of framing in a neutral fashion a discussion of research-oriented use of patented inventions. The topics have been selected to provide an opportunity for members of academia, industry, Government and the bar to provide their input on the treatment of research activity under current patent law as well as their ideas and suggestions for changes, if viewed as necessary, to the current patent system. Parties responding to these questions are asked to provide the basis for their conclusions offered, and, where possible, to provide their actual experiences in dealing with patent enforcement in the context of research-oriented use of patented technology.]

Topic A. Justifications and rationale for or against an experimental use defense to patent infringement.

1. Considering the goals of the patent system of encouraging innovation and public disclosure of inventions, what economic rationale can be cited in support of or against recognizing a defense to a claim of patent infringement based on experimental use of a patented invention?

2. What gains or losses to levels of basic research, inventive activity and investment in research-intensive industries, if any, would you expect to occur if the nature of the present experimental use defense to infringement was modified?

[Note: Parties commenting on this question are invited to comment on the effect of the current patent system on research and development activities, and then to comment on possible effects of a more expansive or restrictive experimental use defense on these activities.]

Topic B. Desirable characteristics of an experimental use defense to patent infringement.

1. What activities by an entity conducting research involving a patented invention should not require the authorization of the patent owner?

2. What activities by an entity conducting research involving a patented invention should give rise to liability for infringement?

[Note: for questions B-1 and B-2, please consider:

- the implications of your conclusions for patented products and processes that are to be used primarily as research tools, and

- whether a distinction should be made between commercially-oriented research (e.g., directed at production of a specific commercial product or process) and non-commercially-oriented research (e.g., basic academic research with no specified commercial target) regarding the availability of the defense?]

Topic C. Justifications for or against a statutory experimental use defense to patent infringement.

1. Is there a need for a statutory exception to liability for patent infringement based on experimental use of a patented invention?

2. If your answer to question 1 is "yes", how would you define such an exception?

III. Guidelines for Oral Testimony

Individuals wishing to testify must adhere to the following guidelines:

1. Anyone wishing to testify at the hearings must request an opportunity to do so no later than January 20, 1994. No one will be permitted to testify without prior approval.
2. Requests to testify must include the speaker's name, affiliation (if any), phone number, fax number (if available), mailing address, and the questions in each topic that the speaker intends to address in his or her testimony.
3. Time allocated to each speaker will be determined after the final number of speakers has been determined.
4. Speakers must provide a written copy of their testimony for inclusion in the record of the proceedings no later than January 25, 1994.
5. Speakers must adhere to guidelines established for testimony. These guidelines will be provided to all speakers no later than January 21, 1994.

A schedule providing approximate times for testimony will be provided to all speakers no later than the morning of January 25, 1994. Speakers are advised that the schedule for testimony will be subject to change during the course of the hearings.

1993 Patent Examiner's Action Survey

As part of the continuing quality reinforcement efforts of the Patent and Trademark Office, the Office will be sending out a Patent Action Survey Form with each Patent Examiner's Office action mailed during a period of several weeks during December, 1993-January, 1994.

The survey is intended to determine whether Office actions are perceived to be clear and complete on certain specific and important items related to patent examining practices and procedures. The results of the survey will be used in the development of Office training programs. The survey is a follow-up to the Patent Action Surveys conducted in 1991 and 1992. Where training is provided to address identified deficiencies in performance, follow-up surveys are intended to be conducted in the future to determine whether the training was effective enough to improve performance in the measured areas.

The Survey Form is brief and easy to complete and does not permit identification of the respondent or of the particular application involved. The Survey Form may be completed at the time of response to the Office Action. It is possible that a practitioner may receive many Office Actions containing a Survey Form during the survey period. To have results that are meaningful, the Office needs a high response rate. Therefore, it is important that patent practitioners complete each survey form no later than the time of response to the Office action being surveyed. To assure that this form is completed and mailed back to the address indicated on the Survey Form, it would be desirable for the patent practitioners to have their office managers/docketing personnel take appropriate steps to keep the form and Office action together for the practitioner's benefit.

Your cooperation in completing the Survey Form is appreciated.

Reference Collections of U.S. Patents and Trademarks Available for Public Use in Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries (PTDLs), receive patent and trademark information in various formats from the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. Many PTDLs have on file all full-text patents issued since 1790, trademarks published since 1872, and select collections of foreign patents. All PTDLs have both the patent and trademark sections of the Official Gazette of the U. S. Patent and Trademark Office. The full-text utility and design patents are distributed numerically on 16 mm microfilm, and plant patents on color microfiche. Patent and trademark search systems on CD-ROM (Compact Disc-Read Only) format are available at all PTDLs to increase utilization of and enhance access to the information found in patents and trademarks. It is through the CD-ROM systems that preliminary patent and trademark searches can be conducted through the numerically arranged collections.

All information is available for use by the public free of charge.

In addition, each PTDL offers reference publications which outline and provide access to the patent and trademark classification systems, as well as other documents and publications which supplement the basic search tools. PTDLs provide technical staff assistance in using all materials. Facilities for making paper copies of patent and trademark information are generally provided for a fee.

Since there are variations in the scope of patent and trademark collections among the PTDLs, and their hours of service to the public vary, anyone contemplating use of these collections at a particular library is urged to contact that library in advance about its collections, services, and hours in order to avert possible inconvenience.

SECTION 2.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. CL." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

Revision of Trademark Fees

Agency: Patent and Trademark Office, Commerce

Action: Final Rule

Summary: The Patent and Trademark Office (PTO) is amending the rules of practice in trademark cases. The PTO is announcing that the fee for filing a trademark application is $245, in accordance with the applicable provisions of Patent and Trademark Office Authorization Act of 1993. No other fees will be affected by this rulemaking.

Effective Date: Dec. 3, 1993.

For Further Information Contact: Robert Kopson by telephone at (703) 305-8510 or by mail marked to his attention and addressed to the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, Washington, D.C. 20231.

Supplementary Information: This rule change adjusts the fee for filing a trademark application in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 103-179. The trademark fee increase is required to address long-term funding needs of the trademark functions of the PTO which cannot be satisfied with the current fee structure.

Statutory Provisions: Section 31 of the Trademark (Lanham) Act of 1946, as amended (15 U.S.C. 1113), authorizes the Commissioner to establish fees for the filing and processing of an application for the registration of a trademark or other mark, and for all other services and materials furnished by the PTO relating to trademarks and other marks.

Public Law 103-179 established the fee for filing a trademark application at $245 per class. Public Law 103-179 took effect on Dec. 3, 1993.

Recovery Level Determinations: The existing fee schedule, along with the adjustment to the trademark application fee, will recover $518,692,000 in fiscal year 1994, of which $4,830,000 is attributable to the increase in the trademark application fee. The enacted 1994 budget is $504,021,000. An additional $14,671,000 of patent statutory fees will be collected in 1994 and will be deposited to the Fee Surcharge Fund.

Patent statutory fees are subject to the provisions of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990, as amended by Public Law 102-204. Of the total amount of income expected to be collected in 1994 under 35 U.S.C. 41(a) and (b), $103,000,000 must be deposited to the Fee Surcharge Fund for deficit reduction purposes in lieu of seeking general taxpayer funds from the U.S. Treasury. The $103,000,000 is deposited in a special account in the U.S. Treasury, reserved exclusively for use by the PTO, and is made available to the PTO through the appropriation process. For 1994, the Congress appropriated $88,329,000 from the Fee Surcharge Fund.

General Procedures: There will be a grace period of 60 days, beginning Dec. 3, 1993, and ending Jan. 31, 1994. During the grace period, any party who submits a trademark application, which is otherwise sufficient, with a fee of at least $210, but less than $245, will be notified of the fee deficiency and permitted to supplement it within a 30-day period set by the notice of the insufficient fee. If the applicant submits the amount by which the fee is deficient within the 30-day period, the application will retain its original filing date. If the amount by which the fee is deficient is not submitted within 30 days, the application papers and fee will be returned to the applicant. Any trademark application submitted after Jan. 31, 1994 with a deficient fee payment will be returned to the applicant.

Discussion of Specific Rules

37 CFR 2.6 Trademark fees.

Section 2.6, subparagraph (a)(1), is revised to adjust the fee authorized by the Trademark (Lanham) Act of 1946 in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 103-179.

Other Considerations: This rule change is in conformity with the requirements of Executive Order 12612, and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, 44 U.S.C. 3501, et seq. There are no information collection requirements relating to patent and trademark fee rules.

This regulation was reviewed by the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs of the Office of Management and Budget under Executive Order 12866.

The PTO has determined that this rule change has no Federalism implications affecting the relationship between the National Government and the States as outlined in Executive Order 12612.

Notice and opportunity for comment are unnecessary under 5 U.S.C. 553(b) because this rule change merely restates a Congressionally-mandated fee change. Because notice of proposed rulemaking is not required for this rule, the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) does not apply.

The PTO published a notice of proposed rulemaking on July 21, 1993, (58 FR 39102) to increase the trademark fee to $245 based on pending legislation that would have given PTO the authority to raise trademark fees in excess of the Consumer Price Index. The legislation as passed (Pub L. 103-179) simply increased the trademark application filing fee to $245 effective the date of enactment.

1993 Patent Examiner's Action Survey

As part of the continuing quality reinforcement efforts of the Patent and Trademark Office, the Office will be sending out a Patent Action Survey Form with each Patent Examiner's Office action mailed during a period of several weeks during December, 1993-January, 1994.

The survey is intended to determine whether Office actions are perceived to be clear and complete on certain specific and important items related to patent examining practices and procedures. The results of the survey will be used in the development of Office training programs. The survey is a follow-up to the Patent Action Surveys conducted in 1991 and 1992. Where training is provided to address identified deficiencies in performance, follow-up surveys are intended to be conducted in the future to determine whether the training was effective enough to improve performance in the measured areas.

The Survey Form is brief and easy to complete and does not permit identification of the respondent or of the particular application involved. The Survey Form may be completed at the time of response to the Office Action. It is possible that a practitioner may receive many Office Actions containing a Survey Form during the survey period. To have results that are meaningful, the Office needs a high response rate. Therefore, it is important that patent practitioners complete each survey form no later than the time of response to the Office action being surveyed. To assure that this form is completed and mailed back to the address indicated on the Survey Form, it would be desirable for the patent practitioners to have their office managers/docketing personnel take appropriate steps to keep the form and Office action together for the practitioner's benefit.

Your cooperation in completing the Survey Form is appreciated.

Reference Collections of U.S. Patents and Trademarks
Available for Public Use in Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries

The following libraries, designated as Patent and Trademark Depository Libraries (PTDLs), receive patent and trademark information in various formats from the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. Many PTDLs have on file all full-text patents issued since 1790, trademarks published since 1872, and select collections of foreign patents. All PTDLs have both the patent and trademark sections of the Official Gazette of the U. S. Patent and Trademark Office. The full-text utility and design patents are distributed numerically on 16 mm microfilm, and plant patents on color microfiche. Patent and trademark search systems on CD-ROM (Compact Disc-Read Only) format are available at all PTDLs to increase utilization of and enhance access to the information found in patents and trademarks. It is through the CD-ROM systems that preliminary patent and trademark searches can be conducted through the numerically arranged collections.

All information is available for use by the public free of charge.

In addition, each PTDL offers reference publications which outline and provide access to the patent and trademark classification systems, as well as other documents and publications which supplement the basic search tools. PTDLs provide technical staff assistance in using all materials. Facilities for making paper copies of patent and trademark information are generally provided for a fee.

Since there are variations in the scope of patent and trademark collections among the PTDLs, and their hours of service to the public vary, anyone contemplating use of these collections at a particular library is urged to contact that library in advance about its collections, services, and hours in order to avert possible inconvenience.

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).

SECTION 1.—INTERNATIONAL CLASSIFICATION

The short titles associated below with the international class numbers are terms designed merely for quick identification and are not an official part of the international classification. The full names of international classes are given in section 6.1 of the trademark rules of practice.

The designation "U.S. Cl." appearing in this section refers to the U.S. class in effect prior to Sep. 1, 1973 rather than the international class which applies to applications filed on or after that date. For adoption of international classification see notice in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE of Jun. 26, 1973 (911 O.G. TM 210).
